Corrigendum

The sentence “Quite true to the terminology used, WTP refers to preferences that have been observed and thus revealed to the world, such as prices in the market; WTA, on the other hand, refers to preferences that have been self-reported by, for instance, survey respondents” was changed to “Revealed preference refers to preferences that have been observed and thus revealed to the world, such as prices in the market; stated preference, on the other hand, refers to preferences that have been self-reported by, for instance, survey respondents.”
