

Senior economist, Team leader,
Environment and Economic Integration Division, OECD

Walid Oueslati holds a PhD degree from the University of Paris Ouest - Nanterre (France). He is currently working as a senior economist at the OECD Environment Directorate. He was previously a full professor of Environmental Economics at Agrocampus, University of Angers (France) and a visiting professor at Newcastle University (UK).

Walid Oueslati has extensive research and research management experience across a number of fields, including economic growth theories, environmental economics and urban economics, ranging from pure academic to policy supporting research. He published over forty scientific articles in refereed journals, text books and several conferences. His recent work has been concerned with economic and environmental effectiveness of land use policies.