

Emma CRICHTON has an extensive senior career history in Australian Organisations delivering employment services and employability skills training. She has a double degree in Social Work and Sociology and has gained wide experience in delivering growth and building scale, through diversifying revenue streams. With a proven track record in solving complex challenges, her expertise is creating programs that transition individuals and communities to a better position in the global economy. Through a variety of Director appointments on Boards connected to education, employment and people, she has been able to influence and shape strategic decisions that make a positive social impact in areas that create meaningful change in society. Emma is an Executive Director at PeoplePlus Enterprises Australia.