The Organisation for Economic Co-Operation and Development

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) is an international body that promotes policies to improve the economic and social well-being of people around the world. It is composed of 38 member countries, a secretariat in Paris, and committees, drawn from experts from government and other fields, for each work area covered by the organisation. The OECD provides a forum in which governments can work together to share experiences and seek solutions to common problems. It collaborates with governments to understand what drives economic, social and environmental change. The organisation also analyses and compares data to predict future trends.

The MENA-OECD Governance Programme

The MENA-OECD Governance Programme is a strategic partnership between MENA and OECD countries to share knowledge and expertise, with a view of disseminating standards and principles of good governance that support the ongoing process of reform in the MENA region. The Programme strengthens collaboration with the most relevant multilateral initiatives currently underway in the region. In particular, the Programme supports the implementation of the G7 Deauville Partnership and assists governments in meeting the eligibility criteria to become members of the Open Government Partnership. Through these initiatives, the Programme acts as a leading advocate of managing ongoing public governance reforms in the MENA region. The Programme provides a sustainable structure for regional policy dialogue as well as for country specific projects. These projects correspond to the commitment of MENA governments to implement public sector reforms in view of unlocking social and economic development and of meeting citizens' growing expectations in terms of quality services, inclusive policymaking and transparency.

The OECD Open Government Unit

The OECD Open Government unit supports countries in their efforts to build more transparent, accountable and participatory governments that can restore citizens' trust and promote inclusive growth. Through data collection, capacity building and the promotion of regional peer dialogue, the OECD provides in-depth analyses of open government strategies and initiatives, coupled with policy advice and actionable recommendations. The unit's work is based on the OECD Recommendation of the Council on Open Government, the first international legal instrument on the topic, which defines the main tenets of the governance of open government strategies and initiatives and paving the way forward for this agenda across OECD members and partners.

PHASE III: OECD CITIZENS' VOICE PROJECT IN JORDAN (2021 – 2023)

Supported by the Foreign Office of the Federal Republic of Germany, the project "Citizens' Voice III: Empowering Civil Society and the Media to Enhance Open Government in Jordan (2021-2023)" seeks to help create, strengthen and preserve spaces that facilitate the participation of Jordanian civil society and media in public life and promote dialogue between these actors and the government. As part of this work, the OECD will develop an assessment of existing legal, regulatory and institutional challenges in the country and provide recommendations on how to protect and promote a healthy and well-functioning media and information ecosystem. It will also support the creation of a network of Jordanian civil society and media stakeholders to exchange good practices in this field and strengthen their capacities through a series of conferences and workshops. This project builds on our previous work in the framework of Phase I (2016-2018) and II (2019-2021) of the citizens' voice project supporting government communicators and is part of a broader regional initiative including Lebanon and the Palestinian Authority.
