

András G. Inotai

Member of Cabinet, Maritime Affairs and Fisheries,
DG Environment, European Commission

András is a Member of Cabinet of Mr. Karmenu Vella, European Commissioner for Environment, Maritime Affairs and Fisheries. He advises the Commissioner on sustainable blue growth and ocean governance, including maritime security, the fight against illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing, as well as state aid and trade policy.

Previously, András worked as member of cabinet of Maria Damanaki, European Commissioner for maritime affairs and fisheries, where he was in charge of relations with the European Parliament.

Previously, he worked in the Competition Directorate General of the European Commission, specialising in anti-trust and regulatory cases in the electronic communications sector and then developing the strategic direction of the European Commission's competition policy.

Before joining the European Commission, András worked in the Brussels office of Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer, specialising in telecommunications, media and technology cases.
